

Michael Woodhouse Undergraduate Award

Michael Woodhouse graduated from Monash University with a Bachelor and Master's degree specialising in hydrology. Michael became extremely well known to all leading luminaries in the hydrology/hydraulics field across Australia through his work, papers at conferences and involvement with Engineers Australia in organising local, state and national events. He had come to Brisbane to join Cameron McNamara (now KBR) and was a leading light in their Water Engineering work across Australia. He was a member and Secretary of the Engineers Australia Water Panel and the National Committee on Water Engineering, and extremely knowledgeable on all things hydrology.

Unfortunately at a very young age, Michael developed cancer and passed away in the mid 1980s in his early thirties. Because of his substantial contribution over such a short period, and his particular interest in university graduates and their research, EA agreed to Cameron McNamara's proposal to name a student award in his honour. A bursary fund for the awards was formed from Cameron McNamara's initial contribution and ongoing donations from water panel firms and individuals.

The QLD Water Panel Michael Woodhouse Undergraduate Awards event showcases work from our most promising future water engineers. In the past, University students from across Queensland have presented their undergraduate projects in competition for the accolade of the evening. The winning students are awarded a bursary from the Michael Woodhouse Memorial Fund and have their name inscribed on the official Michael Woodhouse shield.
